

Red Wall Canyon

Approaching the canyon mouth. The red colors are amazing here, and they are even better in the canyon:

Entering the canyon:

Continuing up-canyon. The tall, majestic walls and the red coloring make this canyon excellent already:

The canyon starts to narrow ahead:

As we round another corner, we see the incredible red walls. My camera just couldn't capture the colors, so these pictures really don't accurately portray the red shade of the canyon walls:

Up ahead we see the first set of narrows:

The 25-foot fall where we stopped. I didn't trust the rope or my skill enough to continue further, but I plan to return to check out possible workarounds for the fall:

Possible route for a bypass of the 25-foot fall just below the amazing red walls:

